

Grandma's Story Book

The stories of a life, in your own words

Written by

For

Begun on

Grandpa's Story Book

The stories of a life, in your own words

Written by

For

Begun on

How to fill it in

Give it with a pen

Print the pages, punch them for a binder or take them to a print shop to bind, and give the book with a good pen. Large type and wide lines make it easy to write by hand.

Fill it in together

At the holiday table or on a phone call, read a question aloud and let the stories come. Someone else can write while your grandparent talks.

Skip and come back

There is no order to follow and no deadline. A page with one sentence on it is still a story kept.

Add the photos

Tape or glue a favorite photo on each photo page and write who, where and when beneath it.

Print it again

Lost a page or want a copy for each grandchild? Print the file as often as you need for your family.

Where I come from

Where and when were you born? What do you know about the day you arrived?

What were your parents' names, and what did they do for work?

Tell about your grandparents. What do you remember about them?

Where did your family come from before that? Any stories passed down?

Where I come from: a photo

Tape or glue a photo here

Who, where and when

The full book

This sample is 6 of the 44 pages. The full book has every chapter, five photo pages, a family tree and a letter to the grandchildren.

keptstories.hatcherylake.com